19th Century

This two story, four bay farmhouse presumably of log construction and sheathed with German siding is part of a rural complex which also includes a springhouse, outkitchen and a frame bank barn. Together these buildings represent rural 19th century life in Washington County. The house appears to be of irregular plan with an off center front door and could reflect Pennsylvania German building traditions which are most prominent in Washington County. The exterior of the house displays what appears to be late 19th century renovations.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This farm is located on the east side of Maryland route 63, the Williamsport-Greencastle Pike about one mile south of Cearfoss in Washington County, Maryland. The buildings are situated on rocky limestone land with the house facing west and the barn, east.

The house is a two story, four bay structure resting on low fieldstone foundations. It appears to be of log construction as suggested by the depth of the door and window jambs, and is sheathed with German siding.

Windows and doors are grouped toward the south end of the front elevation with upper and lower story openings aligned in the walls. They are trimmed with late 19th century style architraves with pointed top pieces. Windows have two over two pane double hung sashes. Openings at the second story are noticeably smaller than those at the first story. The main entrance is located in the second bay from the north end of the front or west elevation. It has a four panel door in which the upper two panels have been replaced with glass. A two light transom is located above the door. A one story porch extends across most of the front elevation, sheltering all of the first story openings and continues along the south end wall where it has been enclosed. The rear elevation also has four bays with what was formerly an entrance located approximately opposite the front door. It has been enclosed and converted to a window.

The roof is sheathed with corrugated sheet metal and extends beyond the end walls of the house. Brick chimneys are located inside the end walls.

Behind the house are several outbuildings including a privy. Southwest of the house is a stone springhouse over a large spring and an aluminum sided outkitchen with a large exterior stone and brick chimney. A frame bank barn on fieldstone foundations is located in front of the house. A stone fence encloses most of the barn yard.

The buildings appear to be in good condition and stand on a tract containing 103.5 acres.
